COMMUNITY NEWS

Leaving Things Better Than You Found Them

As you are aware, it requires a considerable amount of time, energy and membership fees to maintain and preserve the appearance of our Summerlin community common areas. In general, these common areas include streetscapes, major entryways, Summerlin monuments, village signage, neighborhood entry signage, landscape treatments, neighborhood mini-parks and 24 regional Summerlin Council parks. When you sum up all of the areas, the Summerlin master community associations and Council maintain and oversee well over 1,125 acres of open space...with more on the way!

The streetscape common areas contain a variety of components and amenities including landscape, sidewalks and bike paths, street furniture, walls, site lighting, pedestrian access gates and a highly sophisticated irrigation system.

Council parks presently include community centers, seasonal swimming pools and play fountains, multiple lighted ball fields and soccer fields, lighted tennis and pickleball facilities, lighted basketball courts, restroom facilities, and numerous tot equipment and picnic areas.

My purpose in briefly outlining these areas is twofold. First, I hope it helps to remind you of the vast amenities for which your membership fees are used. Regular maintenance, utility services, and care and upkeep of these common elements is an expensive, but wise investment in our community. Each of us as members share in the financial obligation, commitment and investment to keep our common areas well maintained.

It is also important that we value and respect our ownership relationship with these community common areas. They are in essence an extension of our own yards' and are a great source of enjoyment and pride to our membership. Community management personnel and various maintenance subcontractors work diligently with association and Council funds to help keep our common areas looking good...not just because they are paid to, but also because of the pride they take in being part of the high standards of Summerlin.

We as residents also play a critical role in this effort. Simply put, our own practices with respect to picking up after ourselves, our kids, and our pets can have a profound effect on the daily appearance of the community. Further, reminding our children that mischievous damage done to plants, walls, gates, restrooms, lighting and other components adds up to costly repairs.

It is important to remember that we are all in this together, sharing and caring for our amenities. After all, they belong to each of us. GNMAWYA ☀️

COMMUNITY BURGLARY ADVISORY

Schools are reopening...residents are going back to work...our homes will be empty, and burglars will be active in our community.

Home burglaries are "crimes of opportunity" that can be avoided. By taking some simple preventative steps you can limit the criminal's ability and/or opportunity to target your home.

Follow some of these best practices:

- Report suspicious persons, vehicles, and behavior to LVMPD 911 for emergencies or 311 for non emergencies
- Build relationships with neighbors and watch out for each other when not home
- Share information within your community on social media sites (Nextdoor & Ring)
- Invest in home security measures BEFORE you are victimized
- Home alarm systems with motion and glass break sensors are most effective

- Exterior recordable surveillance cameras properly positioned are not only a deterrent, but also provide images for investigators.
- Affordable glass protection is available making it harder to break windows
- Have a dog? Make sure your doggie-door is secured and not easily accessed – even the smallest doggie door can allow entry to your home
- Lock all doors and windows to both your home and vehicles
- Do not leave garage door openers in vehicles parked outdoors
- Always arm security systems when you leave the home

COMMUNITY CONNECTION

April Showers Bring May Flowers Preventing Crime With Landscape Design

While we do not get much rain here in Las Vegas, Spring provides great weather to get outside and partake in nature's activities. For many, this involves landscape projects they have been putting off during winter months. Tending to a garden, enhancing, or changing landscape designs around our homes is often done during this month.

When we take crime prevention into account, landscaping is one of the top deterrents of negative human activity. Along with proper lighting, well planned landscaping increases visual surveillance on your property. Having poorly kept, thick, overgrown landscaping can be just the opportunity a burglar needs to lurk on your property undetected. It provides hiding spots at all hours of the day and out of the view of passersby.

If you have a green thumb or hiring someone who does to revamp your landscaping, please consider having low lying bushes or shrubs. Thinned out hedges are another way to reveal if someone is hiding in the bushes. This is particularly important around our windows and doorways, which are a burglars common entry point. When looking at your trees, canopies should not hang too low to provide a clear line of sight on your property. In our younger communities, many trees need time to grow to their standard heights. Once they are fully grown, follow this general rule and keep landscaping maintenance with these in mind.

On the interior of your property line, consider aggressive vegetation to dissuade criminals who may wish to enter over low walls or fences. Desert landscapes with cacti can be a good deterrent for someone looking to access your backyard.

Enjoy this time of year to be creative and enhance your home's beauty – while also giving an ounce of crime prevention a consideration. ☀️
